At 10:30 am Betsy Barnett and Kayla Murdock entered the meeting to discuss the new newspaper. Scott said the county will use the Kiowa County Press for publication of all legal notices for the 2016 year. Scott said the Kiowa County Press meets all the legal criteria required. Scott also stated that the County Attorney advised the new paper does not meet the criteria at this time. The Kiowa County Independent is required to publish for 52 consecutive weeks before the county can use them for legal notifications. Scott went on to say the county however will send their legal notices and ads to the new paper in addition to the Kiowa County Press to support the Kiowa County Independent and provide more thorough information to the public. Barnett asked to go on record stating her concerns for the county paying double for advertising and legal publication and the added burden to the taxpayers. The Commissioners said they had set some funds aside for this type of situation and felt that to support the new newspaper would benefit the County. Scott did state that in 2017 the Commissioners will review this matter again due to the fact the Kiowa County Independent will still have not reached the 52 week threshold of consecutive issues. Barnett thanked the board for their support and time.
